

Using Debt to Find Attractive Small-Cap Stocks

Charles Rotblut, CFA
AAIJ Journal Editor

One potential way to find stocks of smaller companies with a greater potential for capital appreciation is to look at long-term debt. A reduction in long-term debt along with a low valuation and an improvement in asset turnover are linked to better stock price performance.

Read more »